

Livingkindness Foundation Art & Activism Scholarship

for the International Women's Writing Guild Summer Conference

July 12-19, 2019

<https://www.iwwg.org/>

WHAT? The Livingkindness Foundation is offering a full scholarship to the IWWG Summer Conference to an African-American woman with financial need who uses writing as a form of activism for a more just world.

WHO? This scholarship will go to a woman who can provide evidence of her commitment to social justice and and some measure of her success.

WHEN: Deadline for application is June 1.

WHERE? Muhlenberg College, Allentown, PA

HOW? Send 200 word essay to jan@janphillips.com. Share some of the ways you have used your voice to influence culture and stand for justice.

WHY? Livingkindness Foundation is committed to diversity, racial harmony and social justice. This scholarship is our way of amplifying the voices of black women writers so the culture can benefit from their creative gifts.

The transformation of silence into language and action is an act of self-revelation and that always seems fraught with danger. We fear the very visibility without which we also cannot truly live... and that visibility which makes us most vulnerable is that which is also the source of our greatest strength.

Audre Lorde

<https://livingkindness.org/>